

Pre Launch UX Design

Client Name: Gotham Space Agency

Group Size: Team of 5

Duration: 6 weeks

Who are they?

The Gotham Space Agency (GSA) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to furthering STEAM education through exploration of space. GSA will utilize a 2U Cubesat deployment with a crew of 3d printed characters to educate kids about space and scientific experimentation in the space environment. In addition to building and deploying the CubeSat, GSA will develop a curriculum in partnership with NYC educational institutions.

What they wanted?

To create an entire online Gotham Space Agency User Experience for the pre launch page. The UX pre launch team should help them on gaining project Interest, Project Fundraising, Building Out and Integrating Social Media, Recruiting / Onboarding the Gotham Space Audience that consists of educators, students, kids, supporters, and donors.

Brainstorming Session

For ideas on how to cover all the features of pre launch page, we divided the work into many parts. First, we began with brainstorming sessions where we narrowed down on our Minimum Viable Product (MVP). Our MVP had 3 major goals.

Business goals - Goals to get funding, educate kids about stem, inspire next generation.

Brand goals - Space exploration - Science and Tech for Kids, establishing the educational role of Gotham Space Agency.

User goals - Learn more on STEAM in all aspects, encourage to join and get involved with the Gotham Space community.

All these 3 goals focused on one major goal, that is to “Get the funds needed to educate kids” and to accomplish this goal we started with the research. The research process was divided into two major groups : Advertising the Launch and Telling the story

Sitemap

After all these research (brainstorming, competitive analysis) we started with the UX design of the pre launch page. As per the requirements of the project we came up with the sitemap of what the site should primarily contain and on which areas it should focus most. We started with version 1 of sitemap and designed all the pages of it. Then on the basis of user testing and feedback we made the changes again and again and finalized this sitemap (as seen on left).

User Feedback

Feedback Summary

NASA CONFIRMS: WATER ON MARS!

“Our quest on Mars has been to ‘follow the water,’ in our search for life in the universe, and now we have convincing science that validates what we’ve long suspected,” said John Grunsfeld, astronaut and associate administrator of NASA’s Science Mission Directorate in Washington. “This is a significant development, as it appears to confirm that water -- albeit briny -- is flowing today on the surface of Mars.”

Aventura

a mobile app to explore adventurous activities

Elevator Pitch

Aventura app will solve the problem of tedious search on adventurous activities online. User will be able to enter any location and can get all the activities nearby. User can also search by free or paid activities. Users can log in through Facebook to get the activities organized by the groups they have joined or followed. Through Facebook integration, users can also look on activities in which their friends are going and activities which their friend's did and their reviews about it. They can reach that location through integrated Google maps. App will also keep track on the user's activities. Through which they earn the badge based on the count of different activities done by the user. User can also add some event on their own which is not online but for that an authentication will be done to avoid false or bogus activities.

Story Behind Aventura

Dating back to 2014 when I landed in NYC, I had many things in my mind to do and one of them was to do something adventurous. For that, I had to search all the sports one by one online, locate them and check their timings. That was really tedious. After a few months, I came to know from a friend of mine that NY has free kayaking which was quite near to my college location. I was amazed that I missed that activity as I did not search about it in internet. And I felt that there should be some app which keeps track of these activities going on around you with all the other details required. This app is for adventure lovers who want to find an ongoing or an upcoming activity at their current location or at any other city, state or country. Also, it will be important for the tourists who visit NYC for a small period of time as they spend more time in searching about the activities, timings and sometimes they have no clue about what is going on around them.

For the adventure activities there are many websites which provide a collective adventure activities. Also, the major thing which came into light during this analysis was that there is no such application which deals with all the activities. Competitive analysis really helped in filtering the features which will be added in the app and which require some good user reviews.

Sketches & Prototypes - Round 1

Sketch for filtering options can be seen here which is a dropdown. Also user can search activities by entering the locations in the search bar.

The sketches below depicts the home page with just three clickable options namely Search, Sign Up and Log In. Search when clicked gives the list of activities as shown in the adjacent sketch. When user clicks on an activity from the activity list, activity description will be shown to the user (in the next sketch). Also when click on menu icon of the page, a drop down will appear in which the CTA is login or signup

Sketch A (Left): A hand-drawn sketch of a dropdown menu. At the top is a search bar with a magnifying glass icon and a placeholder 'Narrow down your results'. Below the search bar are two sections: 'Best / Recommended' with 'Best' and 'Recommended' buttons, and 'Free / Paid' with 'Free' and 'Paid' buttons. A section for 'Preferred activity' follows, with a 'Select activity' button. The next section is 'Day' with 'Today' and 'Enter a date' buttons, and checkboxes for 'D', 'M', and 'Y'. The 'Timings' section shows four time slots with checkboxes. The 'Ratings' section shows a 5-star icon followed by '& up' and a checkbox. At the bottom are 'Cancel' and 'Apply' buttons.

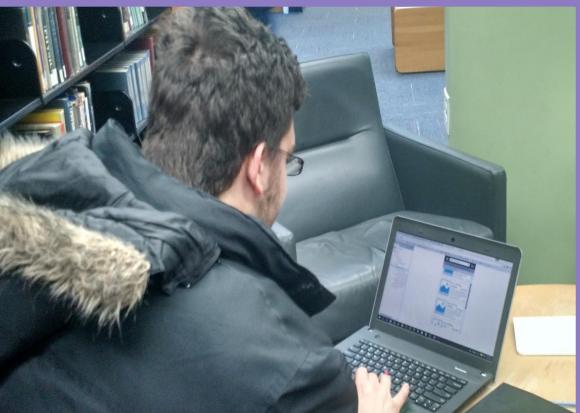

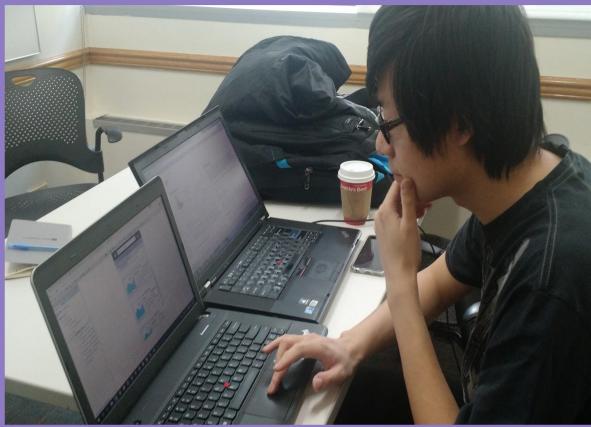

Sketch B (Right): A hand-drawn sketch of a dropdown menu. It shows a large rectangular area with a note: 'Drop down with results related to the text entered'. The top of the dropdown has a menu icon, a search bar with placeholder 'B', and a close button.

Conclusion

The idea which was floating around my mind got finally on paper and axure. Starting from the brainstorming sessions with users till user testing, the idea was liked by many. Users really liked some of the unique features of this Aventura app and it is because of the results which were obtained on the surveys and interviews from other users.

From this project, the conclusion is whatever is budding in your mind, should be scribbled on pen and paper for analysis from users. As sometimes their reviews suggest us to switch to many paths instead of one.
